The Rumpelhead Manifesto: Rules for the Uncooperative

Welcome to the club. If you're here, it's because the algorithm found you, or you've realized that perfection is just a lack of imagination. To maintain your status in the Avachives, please adhere to the following guidelines:

1. Embrace the Glitch: If a line is straight, you've failed. If a face looks "normal," you weren't trying hard enough. We value the Glorious Malfunction above all else.
2. The Title is Truth: If the artist says it's Levon Helm, it's Levon Helm. If you think it looks like a startled potato, that's your problem. The title is the only map you get.
3. Respect the Mouse: We acknowledge that the MS Paint mouse is a sentient, chaotic being. We don't control the mouse; we merely negotiate with it.
4. Ignore the "Experts": When Regina Pembly calls it "architectural incompetence," we say "Thank you." When Gordon Weft calls it "Frontal Lobotomism," we wear it like a badge of honor.
5. Identify by Hair: In cases where facial features have migrated to different zip codes, please use the hair to identify the subject. This is the official Rumpeltonian Navigation System.
6. Any Press is Good Press: Whether it's a bot, a college nerd writing a paper, or a confused aunt on Facebook—if they're talking, we're winning.
7. No Undo-ing the Vibe: Mistakes are just "unintended features." We don't hide our errors; we put a frame around them and call it a movement.

"If it's polished, it's a lie. If it's Rumpeltized, it's the truth." — The High Command of the Rumpelheads